GENERAL SESSION 2:00 – 3:15 pmGeneral Session 1*Thinking Outside the Box: Is There Anything in the Box Anymore?

► Pacific Ballroom 18

The use and reuse of anchor tenant boxes presents a multitude of both challenges and opportunities. Lawyers have the ability to add value to their client's transaction by suggesting creative guidance and solutions. The panelists will discuss reasons for tenant vacancies, the effect of losing anchor tenant boxes, existing issues and future opportunities.

SEMINARS 2:00 – 3:15 pmSeminar 1*Blowing Away the Smoke: Financial Opportunities in Marijuana/Hemp Real Estate Deals

► Pacific Ballroom 21

This session will explore the opportunities that await those who seek to enter into landlord/tenant relationships with cultivators, processors, dispensaries and other related "cannabiznesses" and weigh those against the risks and roadblocks inherent therein. The seminar will provide a summary of the cannabis and hemp landscape across the United States and will take an in-depth look at the nuances/risks that landlords, lenders and other investors should expect to overcome should they choose to enter into this sector and the differences as related to cannabis, including hemp (CBD).

Seminar 2Three's a Party: Understanding the Parties and Key Issues in a Franchise Lease

► Pacific Ballroom 23

A franchise lease is unique because it is a three-party dance with an independently owned local operator of a well-known national or regional brand, a corporate franchisor who is typically not the tenant and the landlord. This relationship poses issues and complications not ordinarily found in a standard lease negotiation, especially if both the franchisor and tenant are active participants in negotiating the lease. The franchisee has two "masters" – the franchisor and landlord – governed by different agreements that may require competing obligations by the tenant. The franchisor wants to protect its brand and image but is not the tenant, and the landlord has to decipher the true decision maker in lease negotiations. We will discuss all three perspectives and highlight the key provisions of the lease that are important for each party and why.

WORKSHOPS 2:00 – 3:15 pmWorkshop 1*Rock You Like a Hurricane – Affirmative Steps You Can Take to Be Prepared for the Storm

► Marriott Grand Ballroom 1 – 2

This workshop reflects on the issues that the presenters faced after Hurricane Harvey in Houston and Hurricane Maria in Puerto Rico. As they discovered after these storms hit, many commercial leases do not contemplate such wide-scale disasters. This workshop will also look at the importance of cooperation and coordination among tenants, landlords and insurance companies. This workshop addresses those issues and how the presenters have modified their lease forms and internal procedures to address these types of events.

Experiential Retail: Can It Continue to Grow and Will It Help Save the Mall?

► Marriott Grand Ballroom 3 – 4

If you ask most folks involved in retail development today, experiential retail is the future. But what is experiential retail, and how does it fit in with traditional retail development and mixed-use development? This workshop will focus on new experiential uses and how they could help revitalize America's malls by providing an additional means for drawing customers to the mall. Panelists will discuss legal and practical issues that arise when experiential uses are added to an existing project and the impact thereon as well as the legal and practical issues associated with designing a ground-up development around such experiential uses.

You Can't Always Sell What You Want! Permitted, Exclusive and Prohibited Uses

► Marriott Grand Ballroom 10 – 11

As the legendary Mick Jagger may (or may not) have once sung, "You can't always sell what you want / But if you try some time, you might find, yourself in default!" Don't find yourself in default. Instead come to this workshop for an interactive discussion of the perils, pitfalls and practicalities of negotiating and otherwise dealing with the myriad of use exclusives, permitted uses and use restrictions found in shopping center leases – past, present and future.

Found Money! Creative Methods for Monetizing Underutilized Real Estate

► Marriott Grand Ballroom 12 – 13

Despite the pressures facing the retail industry and shopping centers, there are creative ways for both landlords and tenants to monetize underutilized parcels and premises. These may include sale/leasebacks, re-development of excess space into complementary re-uses, sublease or license arrangements for entertainment and/or food-related uses, leases or sales of excess parking areas, granting conservation easements, etc. This workshop will explore methodologies for monetizing assets that would otherwise lay fallow or underused.

(Br)Exit Strategies for Leases – Anticipation, Negotiation, Deal or No Deal – Avoiding an Impasse

► Pacific Ballroom 21

No one likes to anticipate failure, but from the beginning of lease negotiations landlords and tenants need to consider how they may want to provide for a graceful exit when that shiny new lease has endured a few miles over bumpy roads. The panelists will cover various aspects of lease exit strategies, whether anticipated or unplanned, as well as typical and not-so-typical lease provisions giving one or both parties an out. They will also take a closer look at what might happen when some of those strategies are the subject of litigation.

Retail Bankruptcy: If Only I Knew Then What I Know Now ...

► Marriott Grand Ballroom 1 – 2

This workshop will examine numerous retail bankruptcy cases and discuss whether bankruptcy was the best option for trying to save the company, or whether bankruptcy instead accelerated the death of the company. The panelists will discuss the bankruptcy process from before an official court proceeding is even commenced and discuss the pros and cons of bankruptcy as a means to save a financially challenged retailer. They will also discuss whether out-of-court restructurings could work and/or whether there are non-bankruptcy alternatives.

Do Not Pass Go, Do Not Click-and-Collect $200: How Omni-Channel/Internet Sales Are Changing the Retail Real Estate Industry and Why Failing to Keep Up May Cost You Lots of Real (Not Just Monopoly) Money

► Marriott Grand Ballroom 3 – 4

Today, online sales account for more than 10% of total retail sales, up from 5% in the late 1990s – and by all accounts, these numbers will continue to grow. While the online retail world is rapidly evolving, many leases are struggling to keep up, with antiquated provisions addressing percentage rent, gross sales, sales reporting, record keeping, audit rights, kick-out rights, radius clauses, exclusive uses, continuous operations and others that need to be updated to match today's changing economy. How should click-and-collect sales, ship-from-store sales, Internet sale returns and other omni-channel/Internet sales issues be treated for purposes of these lease provisions? This interactive workshop will present both sides of the arguments of how these terms should be drafted to achieve a fair balance between the interests of landlords and tenant.

Leasing 101: Everything You Want to Know (But May Be Afraid to Ask)

► Pacific Ballroom 23

If you're attending the ICSC Law Conference, you've probably done at least a little lease work. Along the way, have you ever wondered why certain aspects of a lease are the way they are? This session is meant for those who are relatively new to the industry and would like a broad overview of standard leasing clauses from various perspectives and why they are important. Key clauses and the meaning or significance of certain boilerplate provisions will be discussed along with their interplay with other lease provisions. Both tenant and landlord perspectives will be considered, as well as the perspectives of different types of users. The goal of this session is to provide attendees with a better understanding of the "why" behind many common lease provisions.

► Pacific Ballroom 16

This seminar will focus on the active ingredients in grocery store leases: key clauses (hereinafter, "LotsaClauses®") that will launch stimulating discussion and provide attorneys and real estate stakeholders with useful tools for approaching (and sometimes even resolving) daunting issues in supermarket lease negotiations. LotsaClauses® is ICSC-approved to treat both Pernicious Anchreatitis and Noxious Developatosis, diseases in which the ambitions of, respectively, a supermarket anchor tenant and a developer become inflamed. In the event of an unsigned deal that persists longer than two years or a painful individual negotiation session that persists longer than eight hours, the attorney should seek immediate in-house counsel assistance and avoid telling the brokers about the delays.

Recovering the Whole Enchilada: Matching Expectations and Contract Provisions with Property Insurance Policies

► Pacific Ballroom 18

Businesses rely heavily on property insurance to rebuild their premises, recover their business income losses and get back into business quickly upon a casualty loss. In addition, both the landlords that lease to these businesses using net leases and their lenders expect the tenant's property coverage to pay the replacement cost of the property and the rental loss. All of these expectations can be satisfied, but only if the right coverage is maintained – and for the landlord, if the right coverage is required in the lease. This panel will explain the coverages that are needed for a business to get back into business and the language that should be used in a lease or other contract to accurately require this coverage.

The Nuts and Bolts of a Retail Bankruptcy: What Landlords Need to Know to Protect Their Rights and Avoid Pitfalls

► Pacific Ballroom 21

The presenters will take participants on a journey through a typical retail bankruptcy case from the perspective of a retailer's landlord, identifying the immediate questions and concerns that landlords often have when a retail tenant files and emphasizing how landlords can protect their rights and minimize losses every step of the way. Among other issues that typically arise in Chapter 11, the presenters will focus on actions landlords should and should not take upon a retail tenant's bankruptcy filing, the claims that are available to landlords, how to preserve and pursue them and how to address a retailer's proposed sale of assets and/or assumption and assignment of leases. The presentation is intended to be an interactive experience among the presenters that will ask, and respond to, all the burning

Workshop 18

What You Can’t See Can Hurt You – Lessons from Litigating Invisible Provisions and Implied Covenants

► Marriott Grand Ballroom 3 – 4

In this interactive workshop we will provide a real-world perspective on litigation involving implied covenants. Litigators are often not litigating the deal terms you spent weeks and months negotiating. Instead, litigation often turns on invisible provisions, implied covenants and boilerplate terms. We will explore real-world hypothetical situations involving implied covenants and how these terms can lead to litigation (and how you might avoid litigation).

Workshop 19

Tenant Financing: Will Your Landlord Cooperate

► Marriott Grand Ballroom 10 – 11

The workshop will provide an overview of the issues associated with tenant leasehold financing and how to make the “BIG” ask of the landlord to waive its lien rights. We will focus on the role of the tenant’s counsel in negotiating both Landlord Waivers and Tenant Collateral Subordination Agreements and we will explore the implications to the landlord of its agreements with the tenant and the tenant’s lender. The discussion will include examples of practical negotiating strategies to successfully resolve the conflicting interests of tenant, lender and landlord related to tenant financing.

Oh, Hush! The Nether Regions of Non-Disclosure and Confidentiality Agreements

► Marriott Grand Ballroom 12 – 13

Non-disclosure and confidentiality agreements are a standard part of nearly every real estate deal. This workshop will take an in-depth look at these agreements, including an examination of the practical risks and limitations inherent in keeping secrets. Participants will learn to think through key issues such as timing, scope, remedies and drafting challenges.

Getting the Deal Signed, Sealed and Delivered... Delivery Conditions and Late Delivery Penalties and Complications

► Pacific Ballroom 15

In many leases, a free rent/construction period will not start until the landlord has delivered possession of the premises to tenant. In other leases, the tenant has a build-out period of X days after delivery. However, many leases require more than just the handing of keys to the tenant. In this peer-to-peer session, we will have an advanced discussion of delivery conditions and the variety of requirements, incentives and penalties that could be connected to such delivery conditions.

Seminar 16Setting the Table with Boilerplate: Negotiating “Standard” Provisions and Preventing the Hostess from Getting Away with the Mostest

► Pacific Ballroom 23

We’ve all made it to the end of a long lease when we are tempted to gloss over the miscellaneous section and its “boilerplate” provisions. Many see these as standard provisions not requiring much (if any) negotiation. However, these provisions are often much more important than most attorneys realize and can lead to very real consequences during the life of a lease if not addressed properly. We will explore multiple categories of so called “boilerplate” provisions (including how some courts have interpreted them) and provide tips for drafting and negotiating these provisions in a manner that is most beneficial for each party to the lease.

The discussion will first focus on the appeal and necessity of service-oriented uses, as well as some of the obstacles to getting there. In addition to barriers to entry found in other tenants' leases (and other contracts), the cost structures for these uses tends to be higher (with the operators often having less available capital), so we will explore creative structures to consider in order to advance these choices.
