SAN FRANCISCO RESTAURANTS

620 JONES

Welcome to 620 Jones, San Francisco's largest outdoor bar and restaurant, and your new favorite urban oasis. With three beautiful bars, a lush, 8,000 square ft. rooftop patio, and ample space for events, 620 Jones is one truly unforgettable destination. To bring elements of the historic building's architecture into the space, founder Pete Glikshtern worked with architect Kyle Reicher of Ferrous Studios Inc., to re-interpret the iconic wrought iron grilles from the Gaylord's lobby.

BISTRO BOUDIN

Walking through Fisherman's Wharf you will capture the aroma of fresh bread baking as you come upon Bistro Boudin famously known for its sourdough bread. During the height of the California gold rush, the Boudin family began baking their Sourdough French bread for the newly arrived adventurers. They have been pleasing visitors to the city ever since with the freshness and flavor of their baked goods and abundant variety of seasonally fresh foods available in the Bay Area. Today you will enjoy an appetizing meal, where Boudin's owner and master baker Steve Giraud, Sr. decided to open the first retail demonstration bakery on Fisherman's Wharf. This evening the restaurant will be exclusively yours! Enjoy warm space and unparalleled views of the Wharf, the Bay and Alcatraz Island!

FOREIGN CINEMA

Journey to the Mission District of San Francisco tonight and enjoy a delectable meal on their outdoor patio as you watch a movie on their natural screen. Foreign Cinema is not your usual restaurant. This long running, locals favorite eatery has a rich history. Originally opened as a movie theater and had a bistro type menu. Brought in by two investors John Clark and Gayle Pirie, two young chefs transformed the space into what it is today. From the outside, the space looks like a movie theater. Once inside, journey down a long, dark hallway which opens into a light filled restaurant. Additionally, there is an open-air patio with a blank wall on the far end where 35-mm movies are played nightly. Enjoy towers of oysters on the half shell as well as crafted cocktails. Adjacent to the main restaurant, guests can enjoy an art gallery called Modernism West. Consider this space additional private space options for receptions and VIP dinners with a revolving lineup of exhibits.

PERBACCO

Looking for the hot spot for serious Italian food aficionados? Perbacco is that spot with a full range of flavors found in the Italian regions of Piemonte and Liguria, with a touch of France by way of Provence. “Perbacco” is an Italian word to accentuate positive comments. It can also be an expression of pleasure and surprise, as well as a reference to Bacchus, God of Wine and “good times.” A fitting name for a ristorante so thoroughly steeped in the traditions of Italy, yet with a refreshingly modern feel and attitude. At Perbacco, old meets new in a two level, exposed brick interior, which incorporates a large, open kitchen as well as intimate private spaces. Enjoy a splendid meal complemented by California or Italian wines in the cozy semiprivate Barbaresco’s Back Room. Authentic Italian food with modern design and cozy room for an intimate dinner make Perbacco the right choice for your next dining event.
