Saint Paul is often described as the last of the European-style cities as one travels from east to west across the United States. Nestled on the banks of the Mississippi River, the city values its traditional urban design where neighborhoods of various scales are oriented around parks, playgrounds, libraries and other community spaces. They are linked together and to the River by a traditional street grid, pedestrian trails, parkways and bicycle routes.

It is a city created both by native people and by immigrants. Where other northern cities have lost population over the past two decades, Saint Paul has grown to about 287,000 people thanks to the arrival of new residents from Southeast Asia, the countries in the former Soviet Union and East Africa. Commerce has expanded both in downtown and along neighborhood commercial corridors as small businesses have located and grown in our midst.

Saint Paul is home to the National Hockey League’s Minnesota Wild as well as the nationally-renowned Ordway Theatre. Its family-friendly downtown offers both the Science Museum of Minnesota and the Children’s Museum. Eleven colleges and universities complement high quality public and private elementary and secondary schools. Art galleries flourish both in Lowertown and in neighborhoods throughout the city. A community-wide preservation ethic has ensured that significant buildings, views, and public spaces continue to inspire those who live here.

In 2014, Saint Paul’s first Light Rail Transit line – the Green Line – will begin operations, linking downtown with many of its neighborhoods, the University of Minnesota, and downtown Minneapolis. LRT represents an unparalleled opportunity for economic development, especially among communities of color, new housing, and the “spine” of a revitalized transit system for the eastern portion of the Twin Cities area.

The new TOD Manager will play a central role in helping the community realize the promise of this $1 billion investment. The TOD Manager will work with private sector investors, lenders and developers, city staff, elected officials, and other partners to implement TOD opportunities along the Green Line and other significant transit corridors in the city. Other partners are prepared to move forward on business growth/job creation efforts as well, ensuring that those most affected by the development of the Green Line, for example, have the opportunity to benefit from the access to jobs, and the access to customers, the Green Line presents.

Value of projects completed or in the planning/design phases in 2012 totaled an estimated $608 million and there’s room and demand for more development including:

- Rental units: 9,100—11,250
- Ownership units: 2,175-3,450
- Office: 5.7 million sq. ft.
- Retail: 1 million sq. ft.
- Hotel: 1,000 rooms
